

2011 Keynote Speakers Bring the House Down!!

The National Capital Symposium on Project Management has always been fortunate to attract high profile keynote speakers. And this year did not disappoint!

From building a world-class event space in downtown Ottawa, to running marathons around the globe, our speakers shared amazing stories with us.

Graham Bird showed us what can happen when you assemble a solid team and refuse to take no for an answer.

Anthony Reed shared his determination and drive for success and showed us how to apply it to our daily lives.

And Frank O'Dea took us to the streets of Toronto to panhandle for nickels and dimes. His inspiring story of rags to riches had everyone on their feet and lined up to shake his hand.

Our keynotes can inspire us and can remind us of what's important. They can teach us to build winning teams and how to not let failures defeat us. They set a vital tone for the overall event and certainly didn't fail to do so this year!
